

Armando Salvatore (Italy/Germany)

Armando Salvatore earned his Ph.D. in Political and Social Sciences from the European University Institute, Florence (1994) and received his Habilitation in Sociology from the Humboldt University in Berlin (2005). He is Senior Research Fellow at the Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities, Essen, and Reader at the Institute of Social Science, Humboldt University, Berlin. He is also, on a part-time basis, Senior Research Fellow at "The Mediterranean, Europe, and Islam: Actors in Dialogue" in Naples.

Dr. Salvatore has held teaching and research positions and has been awarded research fellowships in the USA (Indiana University, Bloomington), Italy (European University Institute, Florence), Egypt (Centre d'Etudes et de Documentation Economiques, Juridiques et Sociales, Cairo), Ireland (University of Cork), the Netherlands (Institute for the Study of Islam in the Modern World, Leiden), and the UK (Oxford Centre for Islamic Studies). He founded and directs, since 2000, the Forum of Social Research and is editor of the Yearbook of the Sociology of Islam.

His research focuses on the political significance of modern concepts of religion and secularity as developed within the Euro-Mediterranean civilizational area. Among his most recent publications are The Public Sphere: Between Tradition and Modernity (Palgrave Macmillan, 2006); Religion, Social Practice, and Contested Hegemonies (ed., with Mark LeVine, Palgrave Macmillan, 2005) and Public Islam and the Common Good, (ed., with Dale F. Eickelman, Brill, 2004).
